DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This $3\frac{1}{2}$ story brick and red sandstone town house is a fine example of a symmetrically arranged Queen Anne residence with mansard roof, dating c. 1886. The front facade consists of a central entranceway with conically topped oriel rising to the fourth floor level, flanked by identical bowed wings which rise two floors to support balconies, with sinewy, vine-like iron basket -rails.

The first floor walls are of quarried red sandstone into which small, barred windows are let at the basement level. Stone steps with broad pillow rails of stone lead to the round-arched entranceway, which would appear Romanesque if it were not for the bands of thin drip moldings which surround it below the rough voussoirs. The original door has been removed. The two windows in each of the flanking bays are 1/1 with finished sandstone sills and lintels. A belt course of florally carved stone supports the bays at the second level. The second level oriel, with shell-like underside, is rendered in quarried stone on the second level, but is flanked by flat brick panels. Two 1/1 windows are set into each second level projection, and support a broken stone belt course.

On the third level, built all of brick, two 1/1's are repeated in the central bay while the flanking bays each have single, large brick segmental-arched double windows with 1/1 lights, with stone keystones and mullions. A stone cornice with a row of dentils (which in profile appear as quarter-circles) is at the roof level, above which rise the central, conically topped engaged tower, and brick dormers with gabled roofs. Their pediments are heavily decorated with carved plates and playful relief sculptures. A stone ball finial adorns the tower roof.
